Claim 7 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

There is no antecedent basis in claim 6 for the terminology "at least about 0.25 g" in claim 7.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1-9 and 11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Stone (U.S. Patent No. 6,432,929).

Stone disclose a beverage comprising glucosamine (column 13, Table 5).

Stone further discloses a method for making said beverage wherein the cartilage supplement is added to drink base and the combination is heated to (preferably but not necessarily , at temperatures below those used in a heat pasteurization process” (column 8, lines 15-31). Further note that Stone discloses "Pasteurization parameters in the range of about 165 F to about 200 F (column 8, lines 60-65) and the amount of glucosamine in the beverage of about 1.5% by weight (column 12). Since the reference's teaching is not limited to the preferred embodiments, the claimed beverage and a method of making the same are prima facie obvious over the teachings by Stone.

Claims 10 and 12-17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Stone (U.S. Patent No. 6,432,929) in view of Yang et al (Chemical Agricultural Society, (1998), 36(6), 555-564) and applicant's admittance on page 10 of the specification.

Stone discloses a beverage comprising glucosamine and a method of making said beverage, as discussed above, but do not disclose glucosamine derived from a fungal biomass and containing levulinic acid or melanoidins. However, note that glucosamine derived from a fungal biomass was known in the art at the time the claimed invention was made as disclosed by Yang et al and applicant admits on page 10 of the specification that melanoidins and levulinic acid are bi-products of conversion of fungal biomass to glucosamine. Therefore, it would have been prima facie obvious to a person having ordinary skill in the art at the time the claimed invention was made to prepare a beverage disclosed by Stone by substituting glucosamine prepared from fungal biomass for glucosamine prepared from animal source in order to prepare a vegetarian product.
